Course Objectives

This course analyzes Mexico's 20th and early 21st century political and economic development. Why did Mexico experience political stability under civilian rule and economic growth until the 1970s while other Latin American countries endured brutal military regimes? What accounts for Mexico's severe economic crises of 1982 and 1994? Why did one party dominate politics for 71 years but lose in 2000? How "democratic" is Mexico's new democracy since 2000 and what challenges does it face? The course examines Mexico's post-Revolutionary politics, the characteristics of the national political regime during the classic period of stability with economic growth, and the tumultuous political and economic environment from the 1970s to the end of the century. This material will be presented chronologically, but rather than a descriptive history, we will focus on explaining political and economic outcomes. The final part of the course examines key themes in Mexico's new fully competitive democracy, including trade, immigration, violence, drug trafficking, political corruption, and the response to COVID-19.

By completing this course, students will gain new knowledge and skills. They will have a better understanding of Mexico's society, politics, and economy as well as authoritarian regimes, democratization, political economy, and partisan political competition. They will also gain analytical skills for critically evaluating social science arguments, especially those rooted in historical institutional analysis and will have ample opportunity to improve their writing and social science reading-comprehension skills.

Format and Content

- Students attend two lecture sessions each week. Within the constraints of that format, students are encouraged to interrupt, ask questions, and make comments as part of grappling with the material. Lectures are the central narrative voice for the course. The readings help students understand the main themes.
- The course focuses on answering core questions about Mexico's political and economic development. It prioritizes analytical rigor and uses historical description as building blocks. Students will need to learn the basics of what happened, but the assignments ask for arguments about why key outcomes occurred.
- This course includes some readings and visual materials that depict violence and other forms of abuse, as well as some harrowing personal stories that some students might find disturbing. These materials are presented sparingly; however, I believe it is important not to shy away from showing the world as it is. If you do not want to engage with these materials, please contact me to discuss how to manage course content.
- All sessions will be online January 18-31. Thereafter, the current plan is to return to in-person sessions for the remainder of the semester.

Background

No prior background in the politics or economics of Mexico is required or assumed. The readings and lectures provide the needed background; however, each student has different life experience and so feedback and questions during lecture will be extremely helpful. It is important to note that general knowledge of Mexico may be different from an analytical understanding of course themes and thus is not a substitute.

The pandemic and assignment due dates

We understand that the pandemic has created added economic, emotional, and physical challenges for many people. Those challenges are not evenly distributed. Some people encounter more difficulties than others and at different points in time. We will do everything we reasonably can to help you continue toward your goal of graduating from UT. If you need help, get in touch with us as early as you can. Our options rapidly diminish as due dates approach and typically disappear after due dates have passed. Treating all students in the course fairly and adhering to university policies are overriding concerns for us. Within that context, we will work as hard as we reasonably can on your behalf.

COVID and the classroom

- You are strongly encouraged to wear a high-quality and well-fitted mask to in-person sessions. If you do not have a mask and want one, I will have basic surgical masks available.
- If space allows, please leave an empty seat between you and the next student, unless by mutual agreement.
- No seating in the first row.
- Students that prefer not to wear a mask are asked to sit in the back two rows.
- For personal reasons, I ask that you give me at least six feet of space at all times. I recognize that this may be contrary to habit and may require you to wait to have private conversations in office hours.

Course Policies

Academic Flags. This course fulfills the Global Cultures (GC) flag.

Scholastic Dishonesty and Plagiarism. Scholastic dishonesty is treated very seriously and will be dealt with according to university guidelines. All written work is to be done individually. For more information, see <http://www.lib.utexas.edu/services/instruction/learningmodules/plagiarism/> and <http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs>. Written work may be analyzed by TurnItIn software.

Office hours: The teaching assistant and I each hold three office hours online each week. These hours are for you and I encourage you to use them during the semester. You will find us easy to talk to – I promise. For Spring 2022, office hours will be held online. I will send information about how to schedule.

Students with Disabilities. Any student with a documented disability who requires academic accommodations should contact Services for Students with Disabilities at 471-6259 (voice) or 512-410-6644 (Video Phone) as soon as possible to request an official letter outlining authorized accommodations. <http://ddce.utexas.edu/disability/about/>. Attendance: Attendance is not taken; however, prior experience indicates that students cannot satisfactorily complete assignments and pass the course without attending, taking notes, and actively engaging during every lecture. The readings and slides do not substitute for lecture.

Absence for religious holidays. Please let me know ahead of time so that you do not miss required coursework. Make sure to get notes from a classmate and talk with me and/or the TA about the in-class material you missed.

Personal pronouns. Please let me and your teaching assistant know if you prefer to be addressed with a name and/or personal pronoun that differs from that which appears on the official roster supplied to instructors.

Communication with the Instructor and TA: We will respond to e-mails as quickly we can. It is our policy not to respond to e-mail that does not use correct grammar (curmudgeonly, I know, but text messaging abbreviations have begun to show up in exams and papers). In addition to scheduled office hours, we will make special appointments as our schedules allow for those with work or child/eldercare conflicts.

Notetaking. I expect that you will take copious notes on all material during lectures. I suggest reviewing and, if you are a sloppy notetaker like me, rewriting your notes after class. This will greatly enhance your understanding of the material reduce your study time for exams. On the advantages of taking notes by hand rather than with a computer, see <http://www.npr.org/2016/04/17/474525392/attention-students-put-your-laptops-away>.

Lecture slides. Lecture slides will be posted on the course Canvas site, typically the night before each lecture.

Zoom policies (currently planned for January 18-31 only):

- Sessions between January 18 and January 31 and any other period if/when the course goes online will be available on Zoom through the course Canvas page. Sessions held in-person will not be recorded. Please be aware that video and audio recordings of you may be taken. For privacy reasons, university policy prohibits sharing lecture recordings online or with anyone outside the class.
- You are encouraged to have your camera on during Zoom sessions.
- Do not share the Zoom link online or with anyone outside the class.
- The chat function should be viewed as the equivalent to speaking in class. It can be used to ask questions, raise concerns, or for processual issues like “professor, slow down!” Please do not use chat for parallel conversations that distract from lecture and refrain from speech that you would not voice were you addressing the whole class in person. Note that the host can view private chats even when not directly addressed.
- If a Zoombombing incident occurs (i.e., someone takes over the feed and presents content not associated with the course), I will immediately end the meeting for everyone. I will send a new and different Zoom link to your e-mail via Canvas and restart class at that address as soon as possible, probably within a few minutes.

Sharing of course materials is prohibited. No materials used in this class, including, but not limited to Zoom recordings of lectures and discussion sections, student biographical videos, assignments, and review sheets may be shared online or with anyone not enrolled in the class this semester without my written permission. Unauthorized sharing will be considered cheating and a violation of the University’s Student Honor Code. Incidents will be reported to the Dean of Students for possible sanction.

Class etiquette – my responsibilities. I will arrive on time, deliver lectures with enthusiasm and energy, encourage you to ask questions, think critically, and engage with the material. I will make myself available during office hours and by appointment. I will be respectful of you and of the class.

Class etiquette – your responsibilities. I expect that you want to learn. Principally, this means that you engage the lectures and readings with enthusiasm and energy. I encourage you to wrestle with the material, criticize it and my lectures, and ask questions. In addition, I expect that you will arrive on time, complete assignments on time, and show respect for the teaching assistants, your fellow students, and the learning process.

Campus Safety Information

COVID-19. Updated information appears at <https://coronavirus.utexas.edu/students>. What to do if you think you have been exposed to COVID-19 https://healthyhorns.utexas.edu/coronavirus_exposure_action_chart.html

Behavior Concerns. If you have concerns about the safety or behavior of fellow students, TAs or professors, call BCAL (the Behavior Concerns Advice Line) at 512-232-5050. Your call can be anonymous.

Title IX Reporting. Title IX is a federal law that protects against sex and gender-based discrimination, sexual harassment, sexual assault, sexual misconduct, dating/domestic violence and stalking at federally funded educational institutions. UT Austin is committed to fostering a learning and working environment free from discrimination in all its forms. When sexual misconduct occurs in our community, the university can:

- Intervene to prevent harmful behavior from continuing or escalating.

- Provide support and remedies to students and employees who have experienced harm or have become involved in a Title IX investigation.
- Investigate and discipline violations of the university's relevant policies <https://titleix.utexas.edu/relevant-policies>.

Beginning January 1, 2020, Texas Senate Bill 212 requires all employees of Texas universities, including faculty, to report any information to the Title IX Office regarding sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking that is disclosed to them. Texas law requires that all employees who witness or receive any information of this type (including, but not limited to, writing assignments, class discussions, or one-on-one conversations) must be reported.

I am a Responsible Employee and must report any Title IX related incidents that are disclosed in writing, discussion, or one-on-one. Before talking with me, or with any faculty or staff member about a Title IX related incident, be sure to ask whether they are a Responsible Employee. If you would like to speak with someone who can provide support or remedies without making an official report to the university, please email advocate@austin.utexas.edu. For more information about reporting options and resources, visit <http://www.titleix.utexas.edu/>, contact the Title IX Office via email at titleix@austin.utexas.edu, or call 512-471-0419.

Although graduate teaching and research assistants are not subject to Texas Senate Bill 212, they are still mandatory reporters under Federal Title IX laws and are required to report a wide range of behaviors we refer to as sexual misconduct, including the types of sexual misconduct covered under Texas Senate Bill 212. The Title IX office has developed supportive ways to respond to a survivor and compiled campus resources to support survivors.

Guns: Pursuant to SB11 (<http://www.legis.state.tx.us/tlodocs/84R/billtext/pdf/SB00011F.pdf>) and UT-Austin Campus Carry Policy (<https://campuscarry.utexas.edu/> and <https://www.policies.utexas.edu/policies/campus-concealed-carry>), persons with a current legally valid Concealed Carry License may carry a concealed legal handgun on or about their person in most campus buildings, including in this class. Please review the following:

1. All legal provisions associated with concealed-carry on campus must be followed without fail, at all times. In addition to SB11 and UT-Austin Campus Carry policy, please review applicable law curated by TX DPS (<http://www.txdps.state.tx.us/InternetForms/Forms/CHL-16.pdf>). Please take special note of two of the many legal provisions:
 - a. Holstering requirements: "A license holder who carries a handgun on campus must carry it in a holster that completely covers the trigger and entire trigger guard area. The holster must have sufficient tension or grip on the handgun to retain it in the holster even when subjected to unexpected jostling" (UT-Austin HOP 8-1060, VII-A-2).
 - b. "On or about your person means a person licensed to carry a handgun must carry a handgun in a manner that the handgun is close enough to the license holder that he or she can reach it without materially changing position" at all times (UT-Austin HOP 8-1060, IV).
2. Open carry, including partially or wholly visible guns, is not permitted on campus at any time except "under circumstances in which the actor would have been justified in the use of force or deadly force" (SB11, Section 4 and Texas Penal Code, Section 46.035(a-1)). Violation is a Class A misdemeanor or a third-degree felony.

If a gun becomes visible, please call 911 immediately without waiting to ask for permission.

3. Office visits: I do not allow guns (or other weapons) in my office. Pursuant to UT-Austin policy (HOP 8-1060, VII-C), I am required to give oral notice of my prohibition on concealed handguns at my office door before you enter. I mention this policy here for your convenience; however, oral notice must be given upon your first visit to my office and stands until I revoke it. If you want to meet me with your legally approved concealed handgun on or about your person, please e-mail me with 24 hours' notice and I will arrange for an alternate location.

University Resources for Students

Wellbeing resources

- Counseling and Mental Health Center. University services can help cope with academic stress, difficult life events, or feelings like anxiety or depression. All of us benefit from support during times of struggle. <http://www.cmhc.utexas.edu/individualcounseling.html>
- Student Emergency Services. <http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/emergency/>
- Center for Students in Recovery. CSR offers a supportive community where students in recovery and in hope of recovery can achieve academic success while enjoying a genuine college experience free from alcohol and other drugs. <http://recovery.utexas.eduProvides>.
- BeVocal. BeVocal encourages individual Longhorns to help prevent high-risk behavior and harm. To learn more about BeVocal and how you can help to build a culture of care on campus, go to: <https://wellnessnetwork.utexas.edu/BeVocal>.

Learning resources

- "Keep Learning" Resources include strategies to help you feel more comfortable participating in class. <https://onestop.utexas.edu/keep-learning/>
- The Sanger Learning Center offers classes, workshops, private learning specialist appointments, peer academic coaching, and tutoring. <http://www.utexas.edu/ugs/slc>.
- The Undergraduate Writing Center can help with your essays. <http://uwc.utexas.edu/>.
- Libraries: <http://www.lib.utexas.edu/>
- ITS for tech issues. <http://www.utexas.edu/its/>

A list of resources for (optional, non-course related) community engagement appears at the end of this syllabus

Course Assignments and Grading

The course will use +/- grading and will not be curved. Final course percentages will be rounded to the nearest whole number and converted to letter grades using the ranges below.

Graded assignments		Calculation of final grade
Student survey (Jan 27)	1%	A	93-100%
Reflection #1 (Feb 3)	2%	A-	90-92%
Essay #1 (Feb 24)	25%	B+	87-89%
Essay #2 (Apr 5)	25%	B	83-86%
News analysis (Apr 21)	10%	B-	80-82%
Reflection #2 (Apr 28)	2%	C+	77-79%
Essay #3 (May 11)	25%	C	73-76%
10 reading write-ups (various dates)	10%	C-	70-72%
		D+	67-69%
		D	63-66%
		D-	60-62%
		F	Below 60%

Assignment instructions

- Assignment due dates are listed above and appear in the syllabus. Unless otherwise noted, assignments are due by 11:59pm.

- All assignments should be uploaded to Canvas using one of the accepted file formats.
- It is the student's responsibility to ensure that the assignment uploaded correctly and that the correct file was uploaded.
- It is strongly advised that students learn how to retain a time and date-stamped copy of the files that they turn in on their computers. Google Docs may not save this meta data.

Student survey. We will send a link and via Canvas for you to access the student survey. Your individual answers will not be viewable by other students in the class. If you do not want to answer the survey for privacy reasons, contact me before the due date to make alternative arrangements.

Reflection #1. You may know a lot about Mexico's politics through personal experience, family knowledge, prior courses, or by learning on your own, or you may be curious but have little background. Whatever your starting point, we hope to add to your knowledge through this course. Our focus is on analyzing core themes in Mexico's 20th and 21st century political and economic development. For Reflection #1, please reflect on your current knowledge. Then read the syllabus closely and try to put together the course material like a jigsaw puzzle in your mind. Now, type a page that communicates your personal starting point and what you hope to get out of the course from your initial understanding of it. What questions do you want answered and how do you think the course will help you get there? The more you engage your own knowledge and work to actively understand the course content, the more you will get from this early assignment.

Reflection #2. At the end of the course, take stock again by reflecting on your current understanding of Mexico's political and economic development. Re-read our first reflection write-up, re-read the syllabus, and think through what you have learned. Has your knowledge changed? If so, in what ways? What prior assumptions or knowledge has changed? What especially surprised you? If you learned less than you expected, why?

Reading Digests. During the semester, complete 10 one-page reading digests, each worth 1% of your final course grade. Digests should strive to bring together the themes/issues dealt with in the readings for the date listed, not a summary of each individual reading and not a commentary based on lecture only. We are not using a textbook and thus the readings have different narrative voices. Your goal is to use them to flesh out the themes we cover in each lecture session. Completing these assignments will improve reading comprehension and essay preparation. After completing the readings, the write-up should require less than 30 minutes. They do not need to be perfect, but assignments that really miss the mark can receive partial or no credit.

Each assignment will cover the readings for one session. Choose 10 from the following list of 21 options. Each session is designated by its number and date. Digests are due on Canvas by 11:59pm on the dates noted. Due to the challenges of administering a large class, we cannot accept late assignments, allow substitutions, or give make-ups.

News analysis: Submit a 2-3 page news analysis. During the semester, we will collect a few important news items in English about Mexico and will post them at least a week before the analysis is due. Your job will be to analyze the relevance and implications of the one news report you pick from those posted. Pretend you are a (good) news analyst/talking head that you might see on TV – not one of the hyper-partisan ones, but the kind that helps make the news make sense. What is the background to the news item you are analyzing, why is it important, and what does it mean for other, broader themes that people might find interesting?

Essays. Each unit of the course (not including the introduction) will be followed by a take-home essay assignment. Essays should be 3-4 pages in length and will require analyzing the material from multiple sessions and readings. Later essays also draw on material covered in earlier course units. No outside readings are needed but citations of several course readings will be required. A grading rubric will be available at the time each assignment is handed out. Students will have several days to complete each essay. Points will be deducted for late essays and there will be a final deadline after which we will not accept essays, as noted on each assignment.

Course Readings

Required Readings:

- Kenneth F Greene, Why Dominant Parties Lose: Mexico's Democratization in Comparative Perspective. New York: Cambridge University Press, 2009. ISBN-13: 978-0521139892. ISBN-10: 0521139899. Available for purchase at the Coop or used online for as little as $20 currently. I will donate 100% of profits I receive from U.S. sales during the semester to the UT undergraduate scholarship fund.
- Ioan Grillo, El Narco. New York: Bloomsbury Press, 2011. ISBN-10: 1608194019. ISBN-13: 978-1608194018. Used for as little as $4.50 online currently.
- Other required readings will be uploaded to Canvas.

Notes on the readings:

- Required readings are listed below in 10-point font (this size). Please complete these readings before the class meeting for which they are assigned. The number of pages of reading per session is shown in brackets below and averages about 50.
- Recommended readings are not required and are listed in 8-point font. These readings are not posted on Canvas. I have listed them because I think they are useful if you want to learn more about a particular subject. They should be available online or in the university library. If you cannot access them, please see me.
- The numbers in brackets following each session title indicate the number of pages of required reading.
- Students may substitute selected Spanish-language readings when they are available. These will be the same readings as those listed on the syllabus but were originally written in Spanish or have been translated. Please give me advance notice as it will take some time to gather them. Graded assignments must be in English.
- No student should be unable to take this course due to economic hardship. If you cannot afford to purchase the required course materials and cannot access them through the library, please see me.
- Some of the class materials depict violence and other situations that some students might find disturbing.
- Resources of general interest: English-language news sources on Mexico include: The Herald www.mexiconews.com.mx; Mexidata www.mexidata.info; LANIC <http://lanic.utexas.edu/la/mexico>.
