Course description:

The purpose of this course is to provide you with an overview of the study of international political economy. The course's primary focus will be on the role of politics and government decision-making in international economic relations. Thus, while we will cover some topics familiar in the discipline of economics, this is wholly a political science (government) course. That said, students should be willing to engage with some basic relationships in macroeconomics – that government officials deal with on a daily basis. We will also read cutting edge qualitative (prose-based) and quantitative (statistics-based) research. Students should be open to learning to engage with statistical analyses.

We will examine several topics central to IPE, in three modules: the politics around the international monetary system and international finance; the politics of foreign investment by multinational corporations; and the politics around international trade. We will draw on examples from the United States as well as developed and developing countries around the world. We will regularly address current events that are inextricably linked with our course content. We will also examine historical material that provides context and background necessary to understand today's international political economy – why IPE doesn't "have to" operate like it does today, and why.

Learning Objectives:

- Understand and apply core IPE concepts.
- Organize IPE concepts around national, class, individual, and other units of analysis.
- Use IPE concepts to evaluate historical and contemporary government policy choices.
- Recognize and articulate economic policy tradeoffs that generate "winners" and "losers."

Grade scale:

Final grades are rounded to the nearest whole number.

Grade components:Exams: 75%

Module: Politics of International Finance	25%
Module: Politics of International Trade	25%
Module: Politics of Multinational Corporations	25%

Quizzes: 25%

Exam details: The course is arranged around Modules. There will be an exam following each Module that covers the material from that Module. There is no comprehensive final exam. All exams to be completed on Canvas. You should expect to be tested on your understanding of concepts and your ability to critically examine and apply those concepts.¹ Exams will consist of a series of short answer questions; the professor reserves the right to change the exam content and format at her discretion. Exams are timed.

Flexibility is built into the design of exams as follows: Exams are always scheduled to overlap with course time, and students are provided an extended “buffer” window in order to have an opportunity to complete it outside of the regularly scheduled class time (see Canvas for specifics). A fully prepared student should be able to successfully complete the exam in 1 hr 45 min., or a standard class period. That said, you will have a 2 hr 30 min window to complete the exam from the point of accessing it on Canvas. Exams are open-note.² No exceptions to exam policies will be allowed, beyond those laid out in this syllabus.

Quiz details: Most class weeks are accompanied by a timed Canvas quiz directly tied to the materials for the week. Quizzes consist of five multiple choice questions; the professor reserves the right to change the content and format at her discretion. Correct answers will be released automatically on Canvas following the closing deadline. We typically will not review quiz questions per se during class time; however, feel free to bring them up in class and/or in TA office hours as would be useful to you.

² We expect you not to cheat by discussing questions or answers with other students (or AI bots). Cheating is not ethical, not in your or your colleagues’ best interests in terms of learning, and frankly not worth your time.

Flexibility is built into the design of quizzes as follows: Each student's lowest quiz score will be dropped. A well-prepared student should be able to complete the quiz quickly; that said, you have 30 minutes to complete the quiz from the moment of accessing it. Quizzes are available for students to complete over an extended time period. Quizzes are open-note.³ No exceptions to quiz policies will be allowed, beyond those laid out in this syllabus.

Extra Credit: Completing extra credit can add up to 2% to the final grade

Extra credit details: Ad hoc opportunities for extra credit will be provided throughout the semester at the professor's discretion. Completing extra credit can only add to a student's grade, and not subtract. Completing extra credit will add to the final class grade, with up to a 2% increase in the grade if all extra credit is completed successfully. The main source of extra credit will be multiple very low stakes participation-based and/or comprehension-checking "Instapoll" surveys in most class sessions. A student must be present in the class session in order to access extra credit made available in the class session.

Course Delivery Details:

This course is in-person. There is no alternative to in-person attendance. Slides are posted to Canvas (in advance of class) and classroom recordings are made available when possible, but for review purposes only. The professor reserves the right to include asynchronous learning experiences in the course at her discretion.

You do not need to notify the professor/TA if absent. It is your responsibility alone to catch up on missed material. The professor/TA will not engage in conversations along the lines of, "What did I miss?" Flexibility with regard to assessment is built into the course design and explained in this syllabus and on Canvas. The student is responsible for knowing and understanding these aspects of the course and how they relate to the student's specific circumstances.

Exceptional circumstances:

In case of emergency that will disrupt your ability to be successful in the course: Students are expected to use Student Emergency Services (SES). It is SES's job to work with you and then notify your professors on your behalf. Once notified by SES, the professor will work with you to determine the best course of action and whether additional accommodations can be made, on a case-by-case basis. Accommodations are ultimately at the professor's discretion.

- More details on Student Emergency Services (SES): Student Emergency Services in the Office of the Dean of Students helps students and their families during difficult or emergency situations. Assistance includes outreach, advocacy, intervention, support, and referrals to relevant campus and community resources. If you need to be absent from class due to a family emergency, medical or mental health concern, or academic difficulty due to crisis or an emergency situation, you can work with Student Emergency ³ We expect you not to cheat by sharing questions or answers with other students. Cheating is not ethical, not in your or your colleagues' best interests in terms of learning, and frankly not worth your time.

Services. SES will document your situation and notify your professors. Additional information is available at: deanofstudents.utexas.edu/emergency/ or by calling 512-471-5017.

In case of a disability and access issue: Students must use Disability and Access Services (D&A). Students must have a prior accommodation letter from Disability and Access that we have discussed and signed. No accommodations will be made retroactively. Note that accommodations are ultimately determined based on the context of a specific course, as defined by the professor.

- More details on Disability Accommodations: If you are a student with a disability, or think you may have a disability, and need accommodations please contact Disability and Access (D&A). You may refer to D&A's website for contact and more information: diversity.utexas.edu/disability/. If you are already registered with D&A, please deliver your Accommodation Letter to me as early as possible in the semester so we can discuss your approved accommodations.

The professor/TA expect you to respect them and your colleagues enough to never ask for preferential treatment outside of these parameters.

- Never ask for accommodations for an undocumented D&A issue.
- Never ask for extra credit on demand.
- Never ask for grade changes with no intellectual basis.
- Never ask for retrospective accommodations for "exceptional circumstances" that took place before you received a grade that is not at the level you hoped. The definition of an exceptional circumstance has nothing to do with your grade.⁴
- Never ask for special extensions due to issues that occur at the "11th hour." Your failure to plan ahead to successfully complete the exam/quiz during the flexibility already available in extended time windows does not constitute an emergency situation.

When and how to connect with us out of class:

Please take advantage of office hours of the professor⁵ and the TA,⁶ listed at the beginning of the syllabus. We will use Canvas for course communications; all current information will be

⁵ Why should you drop in or make an appointment to come to the professor's office hours? Please take advantage of the opportunity to connect outside of class. Potential topics to discuss include class material, current events, IPE in general, the professor's research, research opportunities for you, your career and/or future education plans, etc.! You are also welcome to come by in a group, so we can all bounce ideas off of each other. The professor may ask you to stop by in lieu of a written response to a written question; conversations are nearly always better.

⁶ Why should you come to the TA's office hours? The TA is your best sounding board for specific questions about your grade, getting feedback on assignments, and brainstorming the best ways to organize your time and effort so that you achieve the grade you would like in the course. The TA is also an expert in international relations and IPE, in the midst of their own research, and in a PhD program – so they have a unique and important perspective that available there. Emails will be responded to during normal business hours. Expect emails that violate course policies (such as asking the professor/TA “what did I miss?”) to be ignored. Course administration questions? Contact the TA.

Course Materials:

Required textbook:

Oatley, Thomas. 2019. International Political Economy: Interests and Institutions in the Global Economy. 6th edition. New York: Routledge.

- Discounted Textbook Access: The materials for this class are available through the Longhorn Textbook Access (LTA) program, a collaboration between UT Austin, The University Co-op and textbook publishers to significantly reduce the cost of digital course materials for students. You can access your required materials through the “My Textbooks” tab in Canvas. You are automatically opted into the program but can easily opt-out (and back in) via Canvas through the 12th class day. If you remain opted-in at the end of the add/drop period (12th class day fall/spring, 4th class day summer sessions), you will receive a bill through your “What I Owe” page. If you do not pay your bill by the specified deadline, you will lose access to the course materials and your charge will be removed. More information about the LTA program is available at universitycoop.com/longhorn-textbook-access.
- Canvas: All non-textbook readings and other materials for the course will be accessible via our Canvas page. Any amendments to the course content made on Canvas take precedence over the course schedule and readings in this syllabus document. We will do our best to utilize the features on Canvas to make the administration of the course as smooth as possible and make all its components clear to you. You will never be penalized for a technical glitch or issue – but it is incumbent on you to raise it to us in a timely manner. Academic Integrity:

- Plagiarism and Misconduct: Students who violate University rules on academic misconduct are subject to the student conduct process and potential disciplinary action. A student found responsible for academic misconduct may be assigned both a status sanction and a grade impact for the course. The grade impact could range from a zero on the assignment in question up to a failing grade in the course. A status sanction can range from probation, deferred suspension and/or dismissal from the University. To learn more about academic integrity standards, tips for avoiding a potential academic misconduct violation, and the overall conduct process, please visit: <http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/conduct>.
- Intellectual Property: No materials used in this class, including, but not limited to, lecture hand-outs, videos, assessments (quizzes, exams, papers, projects, homework assignments), in-class materials, review sheets, and additional problem sets, may be shared online or with anyone outside of the class without explicit, written permission of the instructor. Unauthorized sharing of materials promotes cheating. The University is aware of the sites used for sharing materials, and any materials found online that are associated with you, or any suspected unauthorized sharing of materials, will be reported to Student Conduct and Academic Integrity in the Office of the Dean of Students. These reports can result in initiation of the student conduct process and include charge(s) for academic misconduct, potentially resulting in sanctions, including a grade impact.
- Student Privacy: Any class recordings are reserved only for students in this class for educational purposes and are protected under FERPA. The recordings should not be shared outside the class in any form. Violation of this restriction by a student could lead to Student Misconduct proceedings.

Other Policies:

- University-approved Function + Religious Holiday Conflicts: In general, the student must inform the professor/TA, with proper documentation, well before the deadline or scheduled exam time, so that the professor/TA can work on alternative arrangements.

For religious holidays, By UT Austin policy, the student must notify the professor/TA of the pending absence at least fourteen days prior to the date of observance of a religious holy day. If the student must miss a class, an examination, a work assignment, or a project in order to observe a religious holy day, the student will be given an opportunity to complete the missed work within a reasonable time after the absence.

- Emergency Alerts: The Office of Campus Safety (512-471-5767) recommends that students sign up for Campus Emergency Text Alerts at: <https://safety.utexas.edu/>
- Title IX Reporting: Beginning January 1, 2022, Texas Education Code, Section 51.252 (formerly known as Senate Bill 212) requires all employees of Texas universities, including faculty, report any information to the Title IX Office regarding sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, and stalking that is disclosed to them. Texas law requires that all employees who witness or receive any information of this type (including, but not limited to, written forms, applications, one-on-one conversations, class assignments, class discussions, or third-party reports) must report it to the Title IX Coordinator. Before talking with me, or with any faculty or staff member about a Title IX related incident, please remember that I will be required to report this information. If you would like to speak with a Case Manager for Support and Resources, who can provide support, resources, or academic accommodations, in the Title IX Office, please email: supportandresources@austin.utexas.edu.
